Hi Ingrida,

Long time.

Listen, here the question is not about believing or not believing, it is simply respecting your contract where it was crystal clear that you will provide an "In Line training" within "x" months at "y" cost.

Here, and if I am not wrong we are more than a month delayed (and the cost mentioned is higher, but this is ok, for something which sounds better)

My son had other opportunities with others, but I told him to "stand still" and keep the written engagement, as they work both ways – you with him, him with you.

So let's make it simple and straight forward because I have personally enough relations, lawyers and many more to make it happen if things does not go into the right direction.

I just and simply want a clear picture and not a moving target.

I am sure you are all doing your best to have that happening , but I guess and you can understand that "waiting" is not a comfortable option.

Let's do it simple from now on and with a precise timing:

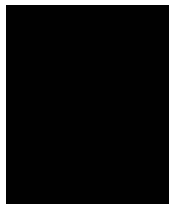

Simon, Ingrida, please send me the draft of what you have so far and also send me a precise timing 100% accurate to go to a full completion.

And from now on keep me cc of all of your communication.

Ingrida, once again, thank you for taking care of [REDACTED] let's now just nail that

Best Regards

So now what do we do should i start packing and take a flight to marocco? Look for another line training like skies aviation or eagle jet? because starting on monday seems impossible now! This is seriously starting to be unacceptable it is more than 5 month that im waiting to put myself in this cockpit! And when you wait 5 month is a lot and now that i ginally see the end of the waiting period No! You make me wait and hope even more! What is going on?!?!? Can't we be in a direct relation with royal air maroc? I hope at least the contract will be PERFECT!

Now i want to know everything you now because believe me I'm more than frustrated about the present situation.

I don't mean to be rude but just imagine my position now...

All the best.

Good Morning

It is confirmed that the starting date is December 15th, 2014

The required documents are as follows :

- Pilot Licence Copy
- Passport copy
- Medical certificate Class 1(copy)
- English level 4 certificate(copy)
- ATPL certificate copy
- log book stamped pages (Copy of 03 last pages)
- Type Rating Certificate

Could you send all these documents (i have some documents of course, but medical is not valid any more, licence without type rating, logbook without simulator, maybe new passport?)

Thank you [REDACTED]
